How Sense help

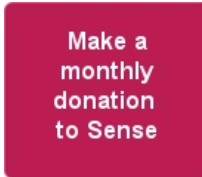

Sense's Woodside Centre helps children like Noah and their loved ones communicate with special sensory stimulation activities like music therapy and Makaton, a simple sign language combining hand gestures with spoken words. These activities also allow Noah to experience the novelty of play like any other toddler. Noah now loves music and can bang on the drum for hours, truly appreciating the sounds and vibrations they make.

Noah's mum Nicola says, "I know really good care is being taken of Noah at Woodside. He just loves it and it's been great meeting other families in similar situations; we've made really good friendships."

With your support

Woodside can keep giving support to children like Noah who often can't experience many of the simple pleasures we may take for granted. Sense helps bring a child like Noah into contact with the world around them..

"We want the best for Noah," says Nicola. "That includes Woodside."
